

Join our collaboration with the International Baccalaureate and share your teaching resources to support fellow IB teachers globally

Have you got great lessons, activities and schemes of work that your class have loved that you could share to help other IB teachers and students?

Our collaboration with the International Baccalaureate aims to help improve learning outcomes worldwide by supporting teachers to share resources and best practice in IB teaching and learning. And we'd love you to get involved.

We're creating a new area on tes.com where teachers will be able to quickly and easily find the IB resources they need, organised by primary years, middle years and diploma programme. We're also creating a new community space where IB teachers can connect to share ideas, discuss the latest issues and support each other.

By joining our collaboration and uploading your IB resources you'll be helping to raise education standards worldwide.

How we'll support you to become a Tes author

Our author academy is packed with pearls of wisdom on how to become a successful author. You'll also find advice and information on growing your shop, marketing and social media, getting to grips with copyright and more. Discover how to get started here.

Our dedicated author team are also on hand to help you develop as an IB resources author – email them anytime on authors@tes.com.

Tips for success

These top tips will help you to create successful resources:

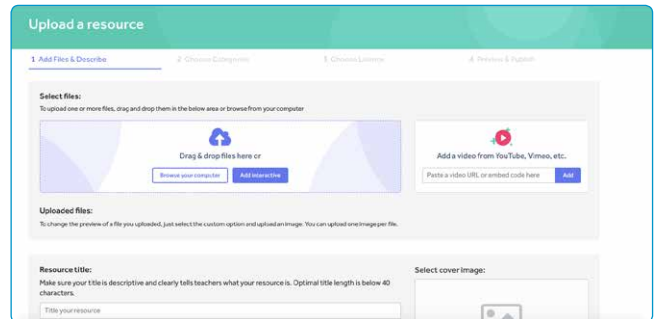

- Make sure you have the right permissions for the content/images you use – find out more about copyright in the author academy here
- Give your resource a title that is short, concise and contains vocabulary relevant to IB teachers – think about what you would type when searching for an IB-related resource
- Write a clear and accurate description of what the resource is so a teacher can easily work out whether it's what they're looking for

Read more tips to make sure your resources are high quality.

Resources ready to go? Here's how to upload them:

Once you have a Tes account set up you can upload your resources by bookmarking this link to the uploader tool.

You'll be directed to a new page where you can upload (or drag and drop) your resource files, create a title and include a description telling others about your resource. You can add any video links associated to the resource and choose the images or screenshots you'd like as your cover image.

Next, select the appropriate age range(s) and subject(s) your resource targets. You can also select the IB programme your resource is tailored to, making it easier for other IB teachers to find.

Decide whether you want to share your resource for free or, if you'd like it to be a paid resource, decide how much you'd like to sell it for. Then click continue.

Finally, you'll need to check the box to confirm that the resource and its contents are your own to share/sell, and then click publish now to complete your upload.

